Updated in March 2019

WE CARE FOR THE ENVIRONMENTAL AND OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY!

At the end of February 2019, Nanchong Fashion Manufacturing Ltd. was successfully approved by the ISO14001 environment management system and the OHSAS18001 occupational health safety management system, and was awarded.

PFQHL Group believes that all enterprises have responsibility to create a more beautiful world. Since its establishment, PFQHL is committed to developing business in harmony with environment and society, fulfilling its social responsibilities, and providing society and industry with leading technologies and best quality. The approval of the ISO14001 environment management system and the OHSAS18001 occupational health management system is a strong proof of the efficient, modernized, scientific and healthy corporate management of the company.

Environmental issues are generated along with economic development. The international community is paying more and more attention to environment protection while developing its economy. The ISO14001 standard is an important standard introduced by the International Organization for Standardization for environmental management. It involves many environmental issues such as environmental management systems, environmental audits, and life cycle assessments. The OHSAS 18001 is a globally recognized standard for Occupational Health and Safety Management System, with the purpose to reduce and prevent loss of life and property & time.

With the great support of leaders and unremitting efforts of our staff, as well as comprehensive, strict, thorough guidance from certification experts, Nanchong Factory was successfully approved and received the two important certificates. All employees of Nanchong Factory will follow strictly in accordance with the quality management requirements, and make continuous improvements to provide high quality fashion wear design, production and export services!
